

Hello,

I would give the opinions on behalf of a store owner in Chinatown. He thinks that the tourists come to Chinatown for shopping and eating because of many small restaurants and small shops which provide special and affordable food or products.

The owners of those small restaurants and small shops are majorly self employed. They could not afford the big and expensive stores. He would suggest government to consider reserving enough small store spaces for them when making changes in Chinatown.

He would also suggest to get Chinese community's opinions first when a new building's design is submitted for government's approval.

Thank you for your consideration.

Wendy
