

Memorandum: Johanne Laffleur
The top of Forest Hill Street ends in a Cul de Sac. Here the mountain is carved as a cliff. The forest extends up and across from here to Summit Circle.
Though not park, the area is visited by many people year long. there's no removal of garbage.
The mountain here, in areas, is eroding. Visitors remove many plant specimens during the spring and summer.

Just last spring about ten trees were cut down on mountain by a landlord to give more sun light onto his property.
