

Concerning residential or any other form of commercial development within the lands involved in the proposed L'Anse à l'Orme development:

For optimizing biodiversity (which is of great and largely misunderstood and under appreciated importance to life (including HUMAN life) on this planet, contiguity of habitat is critical. Insofar as it is possible, preserving what remains of uninterrupted corridors of uncultivated, unlandscaped tracts of land is a critical factor. I am unequivocally opposed to any and all development within the 365 hectares of L'Asse-à-l'Orme. The designation of this as a preserved natural territory should and must be vigorously and rapidly established.

Ian Turner,
Montreal, Quebec